NORTH POLE

Its Discovery in 1909 By ROBERT E. PEARY

Copies of the first edition (now nearly gone) will, we believe, some day sell at a premium. Give your customers the chance now to secure a "first impression copy" from the small supply remaining.

THE BOSTON EVENING TRANSCRIPT SAYS:

"Clearly the book of the year 1910."

"Commander Peary has rare skill as a raconteur, and he has an interesting and unique story to tell. He takes full advantage of his opportunity and offers to the world a narrative which in thrilling and absorbing qualities never has been excelled."

A BUFFALO BOOKSELLER WRITES:

"Contrary to my expectations we have sold out our copies of 'The North Pole' and have placed one re-order, and we are in a position to use more."

"It is as handsome a book as you will be likely to find this season, and I don't know any of last season, except perhaps some art books, that make as fine a showing."

—JEANNETTE L. GILDER in The Chicago Tribune.

"Mr. Bennett's light comedy vein has produced nothing more masterly than this account of the encounter of two obstinacies, that of a hard, shrewd, narrow, self-satisfied, miserly, old Midland townsman and that of an educated, capable, ornamental, eminently sensible and femininely unscrupulous young woman of his own blood. There is no equal to Mr. Bennett for investing the details of a commonplace life with a humorous charm and an interest that are as elusive as a perfume."—The Outlook, London.

PUBLISHED TODAY

A new holiday edition of Bret Harte's

SALOMY JANE

Illustrated in color by Harrison Fisher and Arthur I. Keller

This romance of a kiss is the most famous love story of the Far West. It was successfully played by Miss Robson under the title of "Salomy Jane's Kiss," and is now published in book form for the first time. $1.00 net. Postage 8 cents.

THE CHRISTMAS ANGEL

By Abbie Farwell Brown

A book that will have an equal charm for young people and their elders. The story tells how a little toy Christmas angel brings joy into the lives of a lonely spinster and an unfortunate little girl. The story is an absorbing one, full of tender, human pathos, but with a happy ending—a perfect embodiment of the true Christmas spirit. Illustrated by REGINALD BIRCH. 60 cents net. Postage 5 cents.

An Illustrated Holiday Edition of

REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM

By Kate Douglas Wiggin

Mrs. Wiggin's Rebecca has already virtually attained the distinction of a classic as a story of American girlhood. This holiday edition contains a special preface, a charming frontispiece in color by F. C. YOHN, and many artistic reproductions of photographs taken from the play, which is now running at the "Republic," New York. $1.50.

DARIUS GREEN AND HIS FLYING-MACHINE

By John T. Trowbridge

This amusing poem, written almost fifty years ago, is now published for the first time in book form. It is cleverly illustrated by WALLACE GOLDSMITH, and will make a capital giftbook for those who have attended in the Aviation Meets or have read about them. 50 cents net. Postage 5 cents.

THE QUALITIES OF MEN

By Joseph Jastrow

A study of character and of the problems of temperament, intelligence, efficiency, stupidity and the relations of one person to another. $1.00 net. Postage 10 cents.

HOW TO JUDGE A BOOK

By Edwin L. Shuman

This book, by one of the literary editors of the Chicago Record-Herald, does for the reader what Brander Matthews's "Study of the Drama" does for the playgoer. $1.25 net. Postage 12 cents.

Holiday Books—Sure to Sell

Hilda of the Hippodrome

By DOROTHY CHARLOTTE PAINE

A Truly Beautiful Story Made Into a Truly Beautiful Book

Most attractive embossed jacket in four colors and gold, three-color frontispiece and twenty full-page text illustrations specially painted by

PENRHYN STANLAWS

This charming story will appeal particularly to girls, but will, nevertheless, be of interest to their mothers, fathers and brothers. It is full of heart interest—strong and impelling. The story is an extraordinary peep into the Bohemia of Stageland, with a subtle touch which leaves a lasting impression of the thorns along the pathway leading to success. Hilda dreams of becoming a great singer; her wonderful voice gives her, as a child, a first step forward, but adverse necessity makes her an acrobat. Then comes the story of sublime faith in the ultimate outcome, and she rises above her surroundings and realizes her ambition. 12mo. Cloth. Beautiful Cover and Handsome Jacket. Price, $1 00 Net.

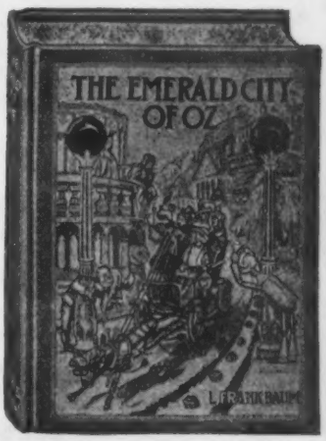
The Last of the "Oz" Books

The Emerald City of Oz

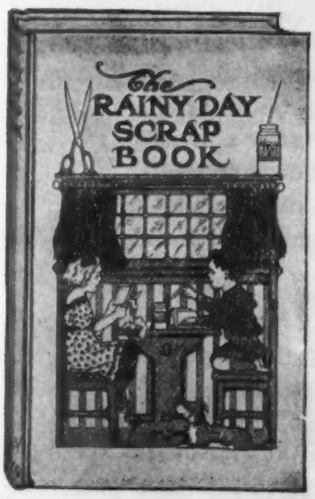
By L. FRANK BAUM



A splendid ending to the famous "Oz" series, this story will delight all children. The favorite old characters are still in evidence and meet most interesting new ones.

This, the last of the "Oz" books, is the most beautiful of all. It glistens and gleams with wonderfully colored pictures by John R. Neill—by far the best work of his career.

16 full-page pictures in four colors and green bronze. 100 black and white illustrations. Uniform in size with other Baum books, bound in cloth—Pictorial inlay—Stunning jacket—Price, $1.25.



The Rainy Day Scrap Book

An Entertaining Educational Novelty

By E. L. and E. T. SHUMAN

More than a scrap book—it is a game—an educational picture puzzle coming easily within the comprehension of all children, who will be highly entertained and at the same time made familiar with history, art, geography and famous pictures, statues, buildings and people all over the world. There are 107 beautiful half-tone pictures to be cut out and pasted in their proper places. When the book is complete it is an illustrated work of art, always to be kept and prized by the children. Bound in cloth, with cover stamped in colors; size 6¼ x 9¼ inches. Price, $1.25.

The Turnover Books

Three volumes, each containing two famous children's classics, as follows:

I—The Story of Peter Rabbit, and The Story of Little Black Sambo.

II—The Night Before Christmas, and Cinderella.

III—Little Red Riding Hood, and The Three Bears.

The accompanying illustration shows the novel manufacture by which the little books can be read from either the front or back by simply reversing the position of the book. Each story is complete and is illustrated with 26 full-page pictures in four colors. Size 6 x 8 inches. 64 pages. Bound in scarlet cloth with one title stamped on each cover in four colors. Price, 60 cents each.

CLEVER RHYMES

Booksellers, if you please, take time
To read this little "ad" in rhyme.
Rhyme "of treasure, love and peril
And very welcome. (Bobbs & Merrill.)"

A SPLENDID HAZARD

I.

OF Bonaparte upon his isle
We have a great abundance,
And someone every little while
Recounts it to redundance,
But here we have the aftermath
By Harold, surnamed the McGrath.

II.

It seems that while his exile passed
Upon those sterile banks,
Some loyal friends of his amassed
A cool two million francs,
The which amount was to defray
The cost of stealing him away.

III.

This goodly sum they duly took
To Corsica and hid:
At least, we have it in the book
That this is what they did,
And there it lay, the plan delayed
Till Bonaparte became a shade.

IV.

And there it lay till all the men
Who hid it crossed the bar,
And when we hear of it again
An old New Jersey tar,
With plats and papers he has found,
Is making for the treasure ground.

V.

A precious lark this is, indeed!
Across the briny water,
With men and money for the deed,
And one bewitching daughter,
And Cupid, relishing the stunt,
An active party in the hunt.

VI.

But ere they reached that goodly hoard
A funny thing befell:
They had a foreigner aboard
Who knew the story well,
And having laid his plans to do it,
He landed, skipped, and beat them to it.

VII.

Alas for trust that is betrayed,
And pieces made of eight!
They hurried thither with the spade,
But curses! they were late—
For Breitmann, with his little pick,
Had rather neatly turned the trick.

VIII.

A quite exciting story this,
Of some two hundred pages,
And just the proper touch of bliss
That readily engages—
A tale of treasure, love and peril,
And very welcome. (Bobbs & Merrill.)

A FINE, FASCINATING, MOVING STORY

THE GIFT WIFE

By RUPERT HUGHES

12mo. $1.35 net. By mail, $1.47

Here is a thoroughly interesting novel covering Europe in its rapid action and holding the reader delightfully absorbed every minute. The hero, a young American surgeon, after a temporary detachment of personality (to use the terms of modern psychology), much to his astonishment discovers himself a patient in a Turkish harem, cared for by a charming veiled woman, the superfluous and unnoticed wife of a local prince to whom she had been presented by the Sultan. Her husband, absorbed in his jealous first wife, had in the phrase of the land, "never lifted her veil," even to discover her great beauty.

The romance that thereafter keeps the reader's nose constantly between the leaves, is of the most absorbing character. It is a story which will establish Mr. Hughes among the best selling novelists.

The recent widespread interest in the harem will help greatly to the quick appreciation of this fine story.

The Better Man

Now Ready

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "The Island of Regeneration," etc.

This is a novel about two clergymen and one woman. There are extremely interesting sidelights on church policies and politics, but the main thread of the story is the rivalry of the two men, a rivalry which culminates when they oppose each other, one as the champion of capital, the other as the champion of labor. They are rival candidates for election to a bishopric, and until the last chapter they are rivals for the hand of the same lady. An absorbing, rapidly moving story, full of human nature and heart interest.

Illustrated. 12*mo.* $1.50.

A Reconstructed Marriage

By AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," etc.

The sweetness and nobility of Mrs. Barr's characters are so well known to her many readers that this her latest novel, needs no words of recommendation to insure its popularity. The story relates the triumph of an exalted love over selfishness and arrogance. Frontis in colors. 12*mo.* $1.25 net.

Stirring New Romance

The Sword in the Mountains

An intensely interesting story of love and rivalry, of mountain prejudice and mountain hospitality, full of the deep interest and feeling of the time, that of the Civil War, vivid in word pictures and forceful in characterization. The book has the merit of sincerity. Miss MacGowan knows her types well, and is fully acquainted with the history of the country in which the scene is laid, and she has produced a story so fascinating, so cordial, so vigorous, so stirring in action, so full of kind, shrewd humor, of genial characterization, and of vitality, that it cannot achieve a greater success than it deserves.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WE regret that through an error on our part Ivy Kellerman's "Complete Grammar of Esperanto" was announced as a Ginn book. D. C. Heath & Company are the publishers.

E. J. CLODE is announcing for immediate publication Hanna Rion's "The Smiling Road," and those who have seen it are ready to say that this publisher has again secured "a worth while story."

BIG book bargains in "used fiction" may be found at the United Library Merchandise Company, 2 East 30th Street, New York City. They carry a complete stock, and invite libraries and booksellers to send their lists and receive quotations. They guarantee prompt shipments.

A. L. CHATTERTON CO., 52-58 Duane Street, New York City, call attention to their many series of books suitable for boys and girls. Among those sure to make a place for themselves among "best sellers" are The Frontier Boys, The Dorothy Books, The Comrades, The Scout Boys of America, the Dare Boys, and the Clover Girls.

B. W. DODGE & CO. have a book sure of readers in "The Autobiography of Thomas Collier Platt," edited by Louis J. Long, and containing twenty portraits in sepia of the renowned Republican Senator from New York, who made and unmade Presidents and Governors, and knew all the national and state secrets of his day.

HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY are printing the third edition of Corra Harris's "A Circuit Rider's Wife," a story of the life of a man and his true helpmate that brings out the real values, and is calculated to make superficial livers of artificial lives pause and think in their useless careers. The fourth edition of Montague Glass's "Potash and Perlmutter," that clever literary endeavor, is also ready and well received.

MOFFAT, YARD & CO. have ready to-day "The Gift Wife," by Rupert Hughes, the story of a young American surgeon who after an illness affecting his mind finds himself a patient in a Turkish harem cared for by a charming veiled woman. George Wharton Edwards has a book devoted to Brittany and the Bretons, gotten up in the same picturesque style as his "Holland of To-day," last years great success at holiday time.

"FOUR Hundred Good Stories" which The Baker & Taylor Co. are publishing is a selection from the material published in the department of Everybody's Magazine: "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree." If it is true, as has been remarked, that every good story ever printed was sent to Mr. Whiting, the editor of this department, from which to make his selection, there is some ground for the claim of the publishers that the book contains the quintessence of the anecdotal literature of the world.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have decided to apply their Loose-Leaf Encyclopædia Binder to the Bible, and to supply with it 160 blank pages, which will enable the minister to put in a sermon or his notes wherever it is required all through the Bible. Nelson's Patent Loose-Leaf Binder makes the volume look just like any other Bible, and the device is so simple that any one can insert, change or remove a page or pages in a moment. Additional blank pages can be secured at any time at nominal cost. The binder is applied both to the King James Version and to the American Standard Version of the Bible.

Weekly Record of New Publications

Armbruster, C. H. Initia Amharica; an introd. to spoken Amharic. pt. 1, Grammar; pt. 2, English-Amharic vocab., with phrases. [N. Y., Putnam,] 1910. O. cl., pt. 1, $3.50 net; pt. 2, $5 net.

Author is the Sudan Agent, War Office, Cairo, Egypt. Amharic is the language of the Abyssinian provinces Amhara and Shoa, and has been since the 14th century the official language of Abyssinia. Within the last three centuries it has been used in writing with adapted Ethiopian characters. It is a Semitic language with an intermixture of African words.

Armstrong, H: Herbert. Autobiographic elements in Latin inscriptions. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. 215-286 p. 8°, (Univ. of Michigan studies, Humanistic ser.) pap., 40 c.

Arnim, Mary Annette Beauchamp Gräfin von. The caravaners; il. by Arth. Little. N. Y., Doubleday, Page, [1910.] c. '09. 3-389 p. D. cl., $1.50.

An officer of rank in the German army with his pretty young wife joins a party of well-born, unconventional English acquaintances for a month's outing in the open country to be made in vans, camping in gypsy fashion without the aid of servants. The tale is told in diary form by the officer who takes himself very seriously and looks on the vagaries of the English as incomprehensible. He knows the English are degenerating and are sure to be swallowed up by Germany. The idiosyncrasies of the two nations are shown up delightfully. Great knowledge of human nature is also irresistibly shown.

Ashenhurst, Rev. J. O. The day of the country church. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1910. c. 208 p. D. cl., $1 net.

The author's long experience in a rural pastorate has convinced him that a great day is at hand for effective church work in country districts. The importance of the country church, ministering to the spiritual needs of sixty-five per cent. of our population, has been much increased recently, according to Dr. Ashenhurst, by the cry of economists for a movement "back to the soil."

Auvergne, E. B. d'. A queen at bay: the story of Cristina and Don Carlos. N. Y., J: Lane, 1910. 11+311 p. pors. O. cl., $5 net.

Cristina of Spain was a very human, passionate, though kindly, woman, whose lot it was to save her daughter's throne and unwillingly to preside at the coming of age of a great nation. She was the ordinary good-natured, practical woman—always more a woman than a queen. There was a grim humor in the situation; there was also a tragedy—so that the story of the times of war and peril through which she lived is dominated by human interest.

Chambless, Edg. Roadtown. N. Y., Roadtown Press, 150 Nassau St., [1910.] c. 172 p. D. cl., $1.25 net; with cover picture hand colored, $1.35 net.
The newest Utopia, Roadtown, is described in this book dedicated to "J. Pierpont Morgan, a straight player of a crooked game." To express the idea at the root of the Roadtown scheme, the inventor uses the figure of a "skyscraper" laid on its side—built horizontally instead of vertically. Relieved of the stress and strain of upright building, this structure could be carried onward a hundred or a thousand stories, or a thousand miles. It would be a continuous stretch of living rooms, with a grand roof promenade and roller-skating highway overhead and with rapid-transit tracks one above the other where the cellar would be in conventional buildings. Provision would be made for schools, theatres, concert halls, co-operative stores, co-operative cooking and co-operative everything possible.

Cody, Hiram Alfr. The frontiersman; a tale of the Yukon. N. Y., Doran, 1910. c. 342 p. D. cl., $1.20 net.
Keith Steadman, medical missionary to the Yukon Indians, is the frontiersman, the story's hero. The miners are his enemies, bitterly opposing any thing that interferes with their wild lives. Led by Bill Pritchen, a thoroughly bad man, whose past Keith knows, the miners drive the missionary from camp, and stir up trouble with the Indians. The Yukon bursts its ice chains and sweeps through the valley just at the crisis of the trouble and a common danger reunites the belligerents.

Coman, Katharine. The industrial history of the United States. New and rev. ed. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. c. '05-'10. 16+461 p. il. pls. maps, D. cl., $1.50 net.

Cooke, Marjorie Benton. The girl who lived in the woods; with 5 il. in colors by the Kinneys. Chic., McClurg, 1910. c. 430 p. O. cl., $1.50.
The marriage of Anne Harmon and Richard Barrett, arranged by their parents, results in six unhappy years for both of them, until financial reverses bring them together. They go to the country to live, and there Bobby Barrett, aged four, makes friends with "the girl who lived in the woods," a talented artist, who lives almost as a recluse until Bobby's influence wins her back to human companionship. Bohemian artist life in Chicago, a labor war, with incidental intrigues and idyllic country life are among the contrasting backgrounds of the story.

Couch, Sir Arth. T: Quiller-, ["Q." pseud.] Lady Good-for-nothing; a man's portrait of a woman. N. Y., Scribner, 1910. c. 9+457 p. D. cl., $1.20 net.
The scene of this romance of the early eighteenth century is laid in this country in the strait-laced colonial times. The heroine, scourged through the streets for some light Sabbath-breaking, is rescued by a customs officer, an Englishman of rank. What happens to her after that, her love-story, her lodge in the wilderness, her voyage to Portugal, and her adventures in the great Lisbon earthquake, make a thrilling story, with much of the author's quaint humor in it.

Coulter, J: Merle, Barnes, C: Reid, and Cowles, H: Chandler. A textbook of botany for colleges and universities. v. 1, Morphology and physiology. N. Y., Amer. Bk. Co., [1910.] c. 8+484 p. il. O. cl., $2.

For thirty years Dr. Curry has given his time and thought to this and kindred subjects. What he has set forth may therefore be accepted as the result of personal investigation and experience. Author is president of the School of Expression, Boston.

Dann, Hollis. School hymnal; a collection of hymns and chants; including sacred, patriotic, and occasional songs, for use in normal, high and private schools. N. Y., Amer. Bk. Co., [1910.] c. 191 p. O. cl., 50 c.

Davenport, Homer Calvin. The country boy; the story of his own early life by Homer Davenport; embellished with 62 il. made from his original drawings. N. Y., Dillingham, [1910.] c. 191 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.
Mr. Davenport is the well-known cartoonist on the New York Journal, and author of "My quest of the Arab horse." He was born on a farm at Silverton, Ore., had no art education or school education, his father and mother having been his teachers, and his ability to draw having been fostered by constant practice instead of instruction. In this book he tells of his life as a boy on the farm, his various attempts at making a living, among them work on a railroad and employment in a circus as a clown, until he went to San Francisco, where he made his first success. The story is told with both pathos and humor, and is illustrated by Mr. Davenport's own drawings.

Deland, Mrs. Marg. Wade Campbell, [Mrs. Lorin Fuller Deland.] The way to peace; il. by Alice Barber Stephens. N. Y., Harper, 1910. c. 93 p. O. cl., $1.50, boxed.
Lewis Hall, a kindly well-to-do country lawyer, marries Athalia, a loving but moody woman, daughter of an actress. The villagers hardly approve of her or her indulgent husband, especially when Athalia goes to live with the Shakers. After some time her husband becomes converted to the Shaker faith and her consternation is great. She pleads with him to give it up, but he remains firm and they part, the woman to go back to the world, the man to live in the Shaker community. They only meet once more and then Athalia is dying. The book is daintily bound and illustrated, the pages are decorated in tint.

Düring, Mrs. Stella M. The end of the rainbow; with a front. by Ethel Pennewill Brown. Phil., Lippincott, 1910. c. 321 p. D. cl., $1.50.
The story of a beautiful and innocent English girl of the lower middle classes, educated above her station, and then expected to live in contentment without occupation for her mind and hands. Temptation is met and resisted and two men love her, one worthily, the other the reverse, but she wins happiness at last. By the author of "Disinherited," "Love's privilege," etc.

Durning-Laurence, Sir Edn. Bacon is Shakespeare; together with a reprint of Bacon's Promus of the formularies, and elegancies, collated, with the original ms. by the late F. B. Bickley and rev. by F. A. Herbert. N. Y., J: McBride Co., 1910. c. 14+286 p. pors. pls. facsims., O. cl., $1 net.
Author has written "History of lighting from the earliest times" and "The progress of a century, or the age of iron and steam." Seeks to prove by hidden allusions discovered in the text of plays and sonnets, by the study of Shakespeare's bust, monument and portrait, by contemporary writings referring to Shakespeare, and by many other means that Bacon was indeed Shakespeare. A great number of facsimiles and reproductions are included.

Durrant, W. Scott. Cross and dagger; the Crusade of the children, 1212; with 8 il. by Arth. Buckland. N. Y., J: Lane, 1910. 12+232 p. D. cl., $1.50.
Deals with the crusade of tens of thousands of children to recover the Holy Land. Tells the adventures of two cousins, boys of fifteen and fourteen, one of whom enters the service of the Sultan of Egypt and the other is taken to the Assassin's Castle. The whole story is set against a background of history—the quarrel between Otto IV. and the Pope, the mission of St. Francis of Assisi to Damietta, the court of Otto's successor, Frederick II.

Dyson, C. C. The life of Marie Amélie, last queen of the French, 1782-1866; with some account of the principal personages at the courts of Naples and France in her time, and of the careers of her sons and daughters; with photogravure portrait, and 24 other portraits and illustrations. N. Y., Appleton, 1910. 318 p. O. cl., $3.50 special net.

Marie Amelie, the daughter of the King of Sicily, niece of Marie Antoinette, aunt of Napoleon's second wife, and wife of Louis Philippe, lived the last eighteen years of her life in England, the friend of Queen Victoria. She met with many vicissitudes in her long life, and knew all of the people of note in Europe, at the end of the 18th century and beginning of the 19th. The book is illustrated with many portraits and views. Bibliography (2½ p.).

Herr Kreutzer was a mystery to his companions in the little London orchestra in which he played. When his remarkable work was praised and the travelling impressarios came to hear him he always played badly, for he dreaded leaving his secret haunts and going among men. He had a daughter whom he guarded jealously. Finally fate brought him to America and there the mysteries of his past were cleared up and he found he was not guilty of a crime for which he had been hiding from the eyes of men.

A story concerned with the days when Indians disputed the Western frontier with the whites, a period with which Mr. Parrish is familiar from personal experience. Jack Keith finds two men murdered in the desert, and when he rides into town to report is arrested as the murderer. He escapes, but finds himself entangled in the mystery surrounding the men's deaths and also with the delightful heroine. He is at last the means of clearing the whole thing up and wins the girl. By the author of "When wilderness was king," etc.

Parsons, S: Landscape gardening. N. Y., J: Lane, 1910. c. 107 p. pls. O. bds., $2 net.

With the exception of the pond in Central Park the work illustrated and described in this book represents the author's own undertakings. No reference is made to the actual design of architectural structures, something which the writer believes is outside the landscape architect's province, but questions of beautifying roads, parks, homes, lawns and playgrounds, and of the treatment of special soils, are interestingly considered.

Paton, Lewis Bayles, D.D. The early religion of Israel. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, 1910. c. 114 p. S. (Modern religious problems.) cl., 50 c. net.

The religion of Israel is traced from its earliest forms when ba'als or powers inhabiting physical objects were worshipped through the gradual belief in one God into which was absorbed all the heathen worship that had formerly been their religion. It was to purify the Israelitish faith that the prophets strove, and this phase is to be taken up in a future book by Dr. Paton. Author is Nettleton professor of Old Testament exegesis and criticism, Hartford Theological Seminary.

The word-painting the author put into "The quick or the dead" and "The golden Rose" is again the distinctive attraction of this story of a young undisciplined girl, by birth half Italian, half Slav, in spirit Greek and Pagan, a worshipper of Pan and other deities of old mythology. She meets an English poet among the ravishing Italian lakes. Their emotions are uncontrolled and the end is tragedy. A faithful old Italian nurse counteracts in some measure the selfishness and neglect of the heroine's mother, but she fills her mind with superstitions and dreams.

A tale of 1766, when Governor Sharpe, the best of the Colonial governors, ruled and the first capital of Maryland was in the heyday of its glory—the most cultured and the richest city in America. A disinherited son of an English Earl comes to America to escape the consequences of a breach of the law. The ship is wrecked; De Lisle takes the papers of Sir Parkington, who is drowned, and presents himself to the governor. He is successful as an impostor and the end is a surprise.

Scott, Leroy. The shears of destiny; il. by Alex. Popini. N. Y., Doubleday, Page, 1910. c. '09, '10. 333 p. D. cl., $1.20, fixed.

A young American travelling in Russia to be present at his millionaire cousin's wedding with Prince Berloff, a powerful Russian nobleman, is called upon to protect a beautiful girl on a night train. Much mystery surrounds this girl, who proves a princess pursued by Russian revolutionists. Events crowd and the story leaves the young Westerner back at home waiting to be joined by the princess he has won.

Shaw, Albert. A cartoon history of Roosevelt's career; il. by 630 contemporary cartoons and many other pictures. N. Y., Review of Reviews Co., [1910.] c. 11+253 p. il. Q. hf. cl., $3.50; $5.

The editor of the Review of Reviews has here gathered together the cartoons illustrating Mr. Roosevelt's political career from its very beginning. These pictures appeared in Mr. Shaw's periodical, having been taken from papers the world over. The descriptive text tells briefly the story of Mr. Roosevelt's activities.

Sinclair, May. The creators: a comedy; with il. by Arth. I. Keller. N. Y., Century Co., 1910. c. '09, '10. 517 p. D. cl., $1.30 net.

The chief characters of the creators are the men and women of London who write for whom their work is the vital fact of existence. The question, "Is it possible for the man or woman of genius to marry and sacrifice neither the family nor success in creative work?" is handled in many conversations with the knowledge of human nature and brilliancy of criticism that made "The divine fire" so telling. Some of the characters marry, some do not; all work intensely and take themselves most seriously.

ONE COMPENSATION OF THE BOOK-TRADE.

MEMBERS of the booktrade are perhaps as a whole too ready to lament the disappointing poverty of genuine book lovers in any community, so ready in fact as to forget another thing equally important—their constancy. In a pessimistic mood we may be prone to point to the vast sums being spent for automobiles and the comparatively small ones being spent for books; to call attention to the average household's annual appropriation for quite needless clothes, theatres and things frivolous and its pitifully small one for things intellectual; to remark the amount which was swallowed up last year for post-cards and playing cards and wonder why there was no greater impulse to put it into imprinted paper in more substantial form.

Yet most of these things we lament are fads, spendthrift phases of a period only. Turning back to THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for 1895, we read "the bicycle . . . is injuring the bookseller's trade. An acute observer"—etc., etc. True or no in 1895, one thing is sure: the bicycle does not injure the booktrade to-day. We may be assured from past experiences that these other things—Sunday newspapers, the automobile craze, bridge, the post-card deluge—will either pass or become modified; but books have been the constant companions of thoughtful men since their inception six centuries ago; and their vogue is as certain to-day as it was then and as it probably will be a century hence.

And so far from these things—all or any of them—injuring the booktrade in the sense of decreasing the sale of books it is enough to note the unquestioned fact that every year more and better books are being published and more copies of books are being sold than ever before.

FOR some months THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has been silent upon the subject of net fiction, not because the subject had in any sense lost its interest to the trade, but because it seemed wise to view for a while without comment trade developments in this direction. Next week, however, in connection with some other material relative to the net system in general, we shall aim to show how rapid and direct this development has been since the spring meeting of the American Booksellers' Association.

WHAT MAKES A NOVEL IMMORAL?

BY CORINNE BACON, of the Newark, N. J., Library.

PERHAPS there is no library topic more interesting both to librarians and to the public whom they serve than the ethical influence of the fiction which forms such a large percentage of the circulation of the average public library. Opinions will probably always differ widely as to whether individual novels are moral or immoral, and yet it should be possible to establish some criteria of morality in fiction to which the majority of us would be willing to consent.

The word morality must not, as is often the case, be narrowed down to the equivalent of sex morality. . . .

As George Eliot, in "Theophrastus Such," protests against the narrow use of the word "moral" to denote in life a man who is blameless in his family relations, so I would protest against the narrow use of the word "moral" to denote in literature books that ignore the existence of passion and the breaking of marriage vows. A novel may have nothing objectionable about it, so far as its love affairs go, and yet be a thoroughly immoral book. For morality includes the whole of life—not simply one relation. Humanity is broader than sex— and all of our relations to each other as men and women are moral relations. So the moral level, it seems to me, must deal truly with the whole of life. A good example, drawn from the chromo-literture of the past but still popular with the uncultivated reader, of a book which confuses our moral judgment, is Augusta Evans's "At the Mercy of Tiberius." The hero, a lawyer, causes an innocent young girl to be arrested for murder. The evidence against her was so overwhelming that the lawyer would have been a gross derelict to duty had he not arrested her. Yet in a lava-torrent of invective which confuses right and wrong, he is pictured to us as the blackest of villains. As a more recent example of this kind of novel, and one of more literary merit, take Mrs. Ward's "Marriage a la Mode." This sharp indictment of our American divorce laws is a novel with a distinctly ethical purpose; one "smells the tract" before covering many pages, but whatever one may believe about divorce, and equally good people differ, the first thing that strikes the reader in this story after, perhaps, its note of panic is its shallowness and confusion of issues. For instance, it leaves absolutely out of the question the right of the child, so eloquently insisted upon by Ellen Key in her "Century of the Child," to be well born. Had Daphne any right to go on bringing children into the world to call "father" a man who had married her without love, because her fortune afforded him an easy means of self-support, and who, when she left him, had not sufficient moral stamina to remain decent, but yielded at once to dissipation? Daphne did not leave her husband for any such lofty motive as the heredity of possible children, but for purely selfish reasons. Yet this does not prove that she should have stayed with him. A good deed (good, that is, in its results) may be done from wrong motives. . . . Better arguments against divorce might be found than the dictum that a woman should cling to a man who had traded on her love to live in luxury, because he was too weak to stand alone!

Then, too, a book which preaches, openly or tacitly, "Get rich, honestly if you can—but get rich anyhow"—is an immoral book.

"One of the most potent vehicles of moral downfall of any kind," says Mr. Bostwick in his "Librarian as a Censor," "is the impression that everybody does it. . . . The man who steals from his employer, or who elopes with his neighbor's wife is nine times out of ten a willing convert to this view. A book that conveys such an idea is really more dangerous than one which openly advocates wrongdoing."

Or a novel may treat of love and allow its heroine no slip, and yet be what I call immoral. For an instance of this take "Pamela." "Pamela, under temptation," says Richardson, "persevered in the path of virtue, therefore my book is a moral book." Not so.

As a certain critic has aptly phrased it, Pamela's virtue consisted in holding out for a higher price. "Hold out and he may marry you," is its most obvious moral. There is a subtle immorality in this. The teaching "Be good and you'll be rewarded with a coronet," does more harm than all the coarseness of "Tom Jones." The sinful woman in the "Scarlet Letter" is a healthier companion than the blameless Pamela. It is not the conduct of the heroine which determines the morality of the book.

What then does determine morality, used in the broader sense of the world? What is an immoral novel? I have already defined it as a book that leaves us worse than it found us. . . .

1. The book may make a direct appeal to our lower nature, may exalt passion at the expense of principle. There is a class of books outside the pale of literature which aims directly to do this. Some of these books are sold on trains, kept on newsstands, and may be found in the circulating libraries maintained by some stores. It seems to me, however, that there are few books amongst those making any pretense to literary art that deserve to be included in this class. Zola surely does not. When he debases, it is incidental, he is not deliberately aiming at that. He is trying to make a scientific study of human nature. He violates good taste and sound morality—just how, I will try to define later—but he is not immoral in the sense of making a deliberate attempt to degrade his reader.

2. The novel harms us when it confuses right and wrong. The book which does this may be quite respectable, it may contain nothing obviously offensive and yet it may be an immoral book.

The lines which separate vice and virtue may not be clearly drawn. Our moral vision may be a little blurred. Some readers placed Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way" and Meredith's "Lord Ormont" under this category. Some would place Herrick's "Together" there.

Balzac, Flaubert and Tolstoi, whose books are full of unpleasant details, never confuse our moral sense. Balzac sees life whole, life in its sins and follies as well as in its nobility, but his keen critical analysis never confuses good and evil. In Flaubert's "Mme. Bovary," so often singled out as a bad book, vice and virtue are never confunded, our sympathies are never enlisted on the wrong side. True, the book deals with the love affairs of a married woman, but the picture never allures us for an instant. I almost incline to say with Henry James that "Mme. Bovary" would make "the most useful of Sunday school tracts"—for those of a certain age.

Higginson, in his volume of essays entitled "Book and Heart," has an essay on the discontinuance of the guide-board, which every one interested in modern fiction ought to read. He shows very clearly why such books as those just mentioned are popularly supposed to confuse vice and virtue. It is because they are not tagged with a moral. As he expresses it, "they raise no guide-board marked 'Dangerous passing.'" This discontinuance of the guide-board rises, he thinks, from the fact that "fiction is drawing nearer to life." To quote his own words:

> In real life, as we see it, the moral is usually implied and inferential, not painted on a board. . . . The eminent sinner dies amid tears and plaudits not in the state prison, as he should; the seed of the righteous is often seen begging bread. We have to read very carefully between the lines if we would fully recognize the joy of Marcellus exiled, the secret ennui of Cæsar with a Senate at his heels. Thus it is in daily life—that is in nature; and yet many still think it is a defect in a story if it leaves a single moral influence to be worked out by the meditation of the reader. On my lending to an intelligent young woman Hamlin Garland's "Main-travelled Roads," she returned it with the remark that she greatly admired all the stories except the first, which seemed to her immoral. It closed as she justly pointed out, with a striking scene in which a long absent lover carries off the wife and child of a successful but unworthy rival, and the tale ends with the words: "The sun shone on the dazzling, rustling wheat; the fathomless sky as a sea bent over them, and the world lay before them." But when I pointed out to her, what one would think must be clear at a glance to every reader, that behind this momentary gleam of beauty lay an absolutely hopeless future; that though the impulse of action was wholly generous, and not even passional, yet Nemesis was close behind; and that the mere fact of the woman's carrying another man's baby in her arms would prevent all permanent happiness with her lover; my friend could only reply that it was very true, but she had never thought of it. In other words, the guideboard was not there. The only thing that could have disarmed her criticism would have been a distinct announcement on the author's part: "N. B., The situation is dangerous;" just as Miss Edgeworth used to append to every particularly tough statement: "N. B., This is a fact."

The same misjudgment (says Mr. Higginson) is often passed for the same reason upon Tolstoi's "Anna Karenina," which surely is among all books upon this same theme, the most utterly relentless.

Not merely does it not contain, from begining to end, a prurient scene or even a voluptuous passage, but its plot moves as inexorably as a Greek fate. Even Hawthorne allows his guilty lovers, in the "Scarlet Letter," a moment of delusive happiness; even Hawthorne recognizes the unquestionable truth that the foremost result of a broken law is sometimes an enchanting sense of freedom. Tolstoi tolerates no such enchantment; and he has written the only novel of illicit love, perhaps, in which the offenders—both being persons otherwise high-minded and noble—fail to derive from their sin one hour of even temporary happiness. . . . Yet "Anna Karenina" has often been condemned as immoral, in the absence of the guideboard.

Leslie Stephen emphasizes the same point when he writes:

The highest morality of a work of art depends upon the power with which the essential beauty and ugliness of virtue and vice are exhibited by an impartial observer. The morality, for example, of Goethe and Shakespeare appears in the presentation of such characters as Iago and Mephistopheles. . . . The artist of inferior rank tries to make us hate vice by showing that it comes to a bad end . . . but he does not exhibit the moral disintegration which is the underlying cause of the misfortune, and which may be equally fatal, even if it happens to evade the penalty.

3. A book may neither appeal to our worse selves, nor fail to distinguish good from evil, and may yet be so untrue to life as to be immoral. Truth is the cornerstone of virtue, for without that as a foundation, courage, honor, love—all that makes life best worth the living—is impossible. An atmosphere of untruth, whether created by the people with whom we associate, or by books which we read, cannot but injure us. Among books that hurt us by their untruth to life, one would not of course include those creations of pure fancy which do not pretend to picture life as it is. The fairy tale, the tale of pure adventure, such as Stevenson's "Treasure Island," are creations of the imagination with no relation to real life. They are neither moral nor immoral, but just unmoral, save in the broad sense in which anything that gives us legitimate and harmless amusement may be called moral, for without amusement we cannot be truly sane.

The impossible story must, however, remain in the air, in the realm of the impossible; the mixture of the fantastic and the realistic is neither art nor life. J. A. Mitchell's story, "Gloria Victis," will illustrate what I mean by this mixture of the realistic and the impossible. The hero is a boy whose mother has run away with her lover, and whose father is a commercial sharper. He naturally inherits many evil tendencies. For a time he is taken into the family of a clergyman whose daughter is unhappily married. The boy, moved by a wish to secure the happiness of those who have been so kind to him, pushes the daughter's husband over a cliff, one day, when they were out hunting together, and kills him. Surprised at the effect upon the family of this murder, dictated solely by his kindness of heart, the boy runs away and joins a circus. Later, he falls in love with a girl who performs on the trapeze. He has inherited from his mother an ungovernable temper. In a fit of passion he strikes and kills the woman he loves. At this juncture, the Lord Jesus appears in the guise of a carpenter and brings the girl to life that the hero may have a chance to experience wedded bliss. The first part of the story is a realistic description of a street gamin almost minus a moral nature; the latter part is pure fairy tale. I think you will all agree with me that this mixture of the imaginative and the real results in a false, unhealthy story. Of course I do not mean to imply that the imagination plays no part in the construction of the novel of real life. I believe there can be no true novel of real life through which there does not shine the light of the artistic imagination. All I wish to insist upon here is that a novel which pretends to be a picture of life must be consistent with itself.

Putting aside, then, the purely imaginative tale as legitimate, the novels of real life may be untrue in several ways.

a Through an impossible psychology. A good instance of this is Mrs. Burnett's "Lady of Quality." Clorinda may do her best to make us believe in her reality, we cannot help the lurking suspicion that, like the children at their play, she is only "pretending." She never was, and never will be, outside that novel. I do not mean to deny that a woman may rise from a fall strong in repentance and right purpose. It is not true that for one sin only is there no redemption. But Clorinda never repents. Brought up among her father's low boon companions, she leads a wild life with them. Suddenly she determines to make herself into a respected woman. To hide her past from her future husband she becomes involved in a scene with her former lover, Sir John Oxon, which ends in her striking him dead with a heavy whip. Clorinda did not mean to hit so hard, but one feels that she is more relieved than troubled by the event as she calmly conceals the corpse under the sofa, and proceeds with her afternoon reception. She is held up to us ever after as a sweet saint, pedestalled upon the ruins of the Ten Commandments, and reverenced by all who knew her. Now this is a psychological impossibility. A woman might emerge from such experiences strong and pure, but her way would lie through agony of soul, and she would always carry the scars of her early life.

To take a more recent example, Trevenna's "Arminel of the West," written perhaps to show the danger of the "sheltered life" method of bringing up a girl, seems to me psychologically untrue.

b By one-sidedness. It may fail to observe the truth of proportion. And just here lies Zola's greatest offense; not in that he sometimes bids us to walk along muddy ways, but that our eyes are forced downward until we see nothing but the mud. The blue sky is blotted out—for us; the sun no longer shines —for us; only the black, slimy mud is real. As Countess Tolstoi has said of some recent writers, we are invited "to examine the decomposed corpse of human degradation and to close our eyes to God's wonderful, vast world, with the beauties of nature, with the majesty of art, with the lofty yearnings of the human soul." Now such a treatment of life is false. The sunset is as real as the mud puddle, virtue is as true as vice, and the book which dwells upon evil to the exclusion of good is as damnably false to life as the book which denies the existence of good. Such an author defeats his own end. His black is not so black to our eyes as though he had pictured it on a background of shining whiteness.

Tolstoi gives us an example of the same thing in the "Kreutzer Sonata," and Hamlin Garland in his "Rose of Dutcher's Coolly." People tell us that these books are true. So they are, up to a certain point, and therein lies their greatest harm. They are of the company of those "half truths" which are "ever the worst of lies." They emphasize one side of man's nature out of all proportion to the other. They lack a horizon.

c By morbidness. Perhaps this morbidness is but another phase of the one-sidedness of which I have spoken. A good example of this is the leaden pessimism of Olive Schreiner's "Story of an African Farm," the disgusting horrors of Nesbit's "House with No Address," which unlike the gruesome tales of Poe, affords no keen intellectual delight, or the abnormal eroticism of Le Gallienne's "Golden Girl" or of Hardy's "Jude the Obscure." I suppose that Mr. Hardy would tell us that Sue and Jude are true to life. Perhaps so; but to a phase of life so uncommon and so diseased as to find its proper place and treatment in medicine rather than in fiction. They are untrue to the normal life of men and Women. Their sadness is not "the pleasant and the tonic sadness, always brave, never hysterical," of which Stevenson approves....

d By falseness to the facts of life. Julie P. Smith, of Connecticut, author of "Kiss and be Friends," "The Married Belle" and many other pleasing (?) tales, is never, so far as I know, called immoral. Personally, I think books such as her "Lucy" most hurtful. Lucy has been forced to earn her living in a store. Mr. Ramestone, an old bachelor, who lives with his sister, and thinks a business life destructive of all that is holiest in woman, engages her as a servant, when the sister happens to be away. Lucy is bidden to take off her cap and apron, and sit at table with her master, who ventures upon little familiarities with her, finally makes decided love to her, asks her to marry him, and presents her with a magnificent diamond necklace. Could anything be more absurd? More untrue to life? A girl at service who might be influenced by that book to encourage a man's familiarities, would have a rude awakening when she found that however those things might be arranged in the world of Julie P. Smith, in the world of live men and women, neither marriage nor diamonds would be her reward. This book is false to life, written in poor English, vulgar in treatment, but it must be considered moral, forsooth, because it does not mention a woman or a man who is a "sinner"! And yet when it is proposed to give the high school girl, who probably is reading trash like this, a truly moral book, a book that kindles thought and inspires to noble feeling, that braces rather than enervates the mind—Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables"—a Philadelphia school committee (with the exception of one woman) cry, "Out upon it—it mentions a grisette. It is a corrupting book!" And they vote it out of their schools. There is greater danger in a false picture of life than in the admission of certain true, but disagreeable, facts. . . .

Many books which are glaringly untrue to life may injure us in another way—may lower our mental and moral tone by vulgarity of treatment, like Phillips's "Old Wives for New;" by oversentimentality, like E. P. Roe's novels; or by the lack of any element which stimulates thought (there are not pages enough in New York Libraries to cite all the good illustrations of this!). We must not, however, confuse questions of morals with questions of taste. This is emphasized by Mr. Bostwick, who tells us in his "Librarian as a Censor" that "some books full of impropriety, or even of indecency, are absolutely unimpeachable from a moral standpoint." Also, there is an outspokenness which neither betokens in the author nor cultivates in the reader a low tone of mind, and there is a plainness of speech which reveals a mind tinctured with vulgarity, or worse. As to Roe, a woman who had been for years a teacher of young girls, once told me that she thought the morbid sentimentality of his novels had the worst possible influence upon growing girls. There is a time in a girl's life when any and every side of her nature should be appealed to rather than the emotional, which is just then in danger of losing its balance. Then thought should be stimulated, the powers of judgment strengthened, while the latent morbid emotion is left to starve. As to those books commonly called "harmless," they are not harmless so far as they weaken us mentally. . . .

Charles Dudley Warner says:

> Bad art in literature is bad morals. I am not sure but the so-called domestic, the diluted, the "goody," namby-pamby, unrobust stories, which are so largely read by schoolgirls, young ladies and women, do more harm than the "knowing," audacious, wicked ones, also, it is reported, read by them. . . . For minds enfeebled and relaxed by stories lacking even intellectual fiber are in a poor condition to meet the perils of life. . . . They (novels of domestic life) are called moral; in the higher sense they are immoral, for they tend to lower the moral tone and stamina of every reader.

It follows then from all this that the question of morality is largely a question of treatment rather than of subject-matter. True, there are a few subjects that a good art, as well as a good morality, would abandon to the doctor or to the professional psychologist. Art is selective, not photographic, and the novelist an artist, who must exercise his power of selection. The knowledge of disagreeable facts cannot harm us if we keep fast hold of the spiritual side of life, and view these facts in their proper relation to the whole, it does not matter much into how deep a gulf of the knowledge of sin and sorrow we plunge, if we rise out of it with a deepened sense of the noble possibilities of human nature, with an intellect quickened in its thoughts upon life, a soul sweetened by a truer sympathy with men and women and more alive to help them, a glimpse of the divine sunshine which lightens the shadiest places of this world. This difference in the treatment of a subject makes all the difference between a good book and a bad one. Take the subject of an illicit love—Henry James says of one of the books of that master of style, Guy de Maupassant, that it pictures "a world where every man is a cad and every woman a harlot." Such a book must demoralize. Daudet's "Sappho" deals with similar facts, but it does not confuse our perception of good and evil. The sin works itself out to its natural and tragic end—the ruin of character. Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" rises to greater heights and deals with sin in a way that inspires us, because it gives us a glimpse of the divine possibility of the redemption of a soul that has strayed. So long as we remember that man has a soul, and treat life from the soul's point of view, we are pretty safe in treating what phase of life we will. Note the difference between some of Gorky's earliest translated stories and his "Mother." In the former we get unrelieved brutality; in the latter there are enough disagreeable facts, but we gain a horizon, we watch the growth of a human soul. . . .

A novel may be true, may deal nobly with life, yet to one person it will be a moral, to another an immoral book. For by immoral, I mean hurtful, and the hurtfulness of a book depends partly upon qualities inherent in the book, and partly upon the tone of mind to which that book is brought. Then, too, what seems moral to one generation will not seem so to another. Morality is not absolute but relative. It varies from age to age. Man has always felt within him the imperative—"Thou shalt do good and not evil," but the determination of what was good and what was evil has sorely perplexed him and his views have changed with the changing centuries. Usury, which meant in its old signification the taking of any interest, was, in Old Testament times, a deadly sin. . . . Then came a time when the receipt of interest seriously burdened no one's conscience. To-day, the Socialists have returned to the older point of view. Slavery was at first a necessity, was right. Bagehot argues that mankind could progress only by having a leisure class, who were not brutalized by overwork, but had time for thought. . . . But in the 19th century slavery had become a sin to be wiped out in blood. Now just as actions may be moral in one age, and immoral in another, so may books. The vulgar frankness of "Tom Jones" was not hurtful in the day in which it was written. . . . On the other hand, the brutal coarseness of certain novels of to-day is immoral because it is self-conscious.

The idea of what constitutes morality differs, not only in different ages, but in different countries. For instance, with us, virtue —in a woman—means purity, while in Japan, a good girl places obedience to parents above personal purity, and the fact that she has sold herself to a life of shame for their maintenance does not necessarily debar her from marriage. Now where national ideas of virtue are so different, the tone of the literature will be different, and a book which is moral judged by the standards of one country becomes immoral in another.

Then, too, in every country we find people in different stages of progress, who will therefore vary in their notions of morality. Brooklyn, years ago, had a superintendent of schools, or member of the Board of Education, I've forgotten which, who was stirred to the depths of his soul by the recitation in our public schools of such an immoral poem as Longfellow's "Building of the Ship"! His objection was based upon the fact that the ship was pictured as leaping "into the ocean's arms," and that Longfellow went on to say:

> How beautiful she is! How fair
> She lies within those arms, that press
> Her form with many a soft caress
> Of tenderness and watchful care.

". . . . Robert Hall found the moral tales of Miss Edgeworth debasing. Thompson tells us that 'Jane Eyre' was pronounced too immoral to be ranked as decent literature; George Eliot's 'Adam Bede' was characterized as the 'vile outpourings of a lewd woman's mind;' and Mrs. Browning's 'Aurora Leigh' was described as the 'hysterical indecencies of an erotic mind.'" It was predicted of Bret Harte's "Luck of Roaring Camp" that its immorality would kill the magazine which printed it. It must also be remembered that as the same book may help one person and hurt another, so it may hurt one person at one age and help him at another; that there are books that while not healthy food for growing girls and boys, may have only an ennobling influence on those of mature years.

After all, the main test of a book is the personal one: How does it affect me? There are undoubtedly some books of which it may be said that they are always harmful: to every one, at every age, in every time. But of the great majority we can only say that we must pick and choose our friends in the book world just as we do in the real world, not looking for perfection in books any more than we do in people, but choosing those that are akin to us, and that help rather than hurt us. There are people who rasp us, people who debase us, and there are people whose mere presence in the room makes us saner and happier. And so with books. . . . If the soul of the book be true and noble, let us not condemn it because it tells of an unmarried mother like Mrs. Gaskell's "Ruth" or Alice Brown's "Thyrza," or of a man in love with a married woman, like James Lane Allen's "Choir Invisible." . . . The book which degrades our intellect, vulgarizes our emotions, kills our faith in our kind, is an immoral book; the book which stimulates thought, quickens our sense of humor, gives us a deeper insight into men and women and a finer sympathy with them, is a moral book, let its subject-matter have as wide a range as life itself.

PAPER SCHEDULES BEING INVESTIGATED BY TARIFF BOARD.

MEMBERS of the Tariff Board and their staff have recently held long conferences with John Norris, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and President Lyman, of the International Paper Co., who discussed the condition of the paper trade as well as tariff rates and the probable plans of the board in an informal way. Mr. Norris reviewed the paper situation for the board. He regarded the paper situation as alarming and as growing more and more unsatisfactory.

There is a strong desire to hasten forward with the work on the pulp and paper schedule. In order to get something definite in hand before the time when Canadian reciprocity negotiations open. These it is presumed the Administration actually intends to take up in real earnest.

The paper and pulp schedule is said to be far from satisfactory in administration circles and there is a disposition to make distinct concessions to Canada on these points.

MACY LOSES THIRD TIME.

IN an affirmation handed down September 27 the New York State Court of Appeals confirmed the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in denying the R. H. Macy Company damages on the sale of copyright books.

It will be remembered that the Macy house were awarded damages of $2700 (amounting, with costs and interest, to $3702.98) on the restriction of sale of non-copyrighted books, which sum was paid by the American Publishers' Association. No damages were allowed on copyright books, and the referee's award of damages on non-copyright books was confirmed by Judge Dowling, of the Supreme Court on May 20, 1909.

The Macy Company raised the question anew, however, under slightly different phase by appealing at once to the Court of Appeals that portion of the original decision as upheld by the Appellate Division relative to copyright books. This decision is now confirmed by the Court of Appeals, and the litigation begun six years ago in the New York State courts would now seem to be finally settled.

This decision has no connection, however, with the Macy suit against the American Publishers' Association entered in October of last year, under the Sherman Act, in the United States Circuit Court.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOSEPH ABNER HARPER, son of one of the founders of Harper & Brothers, died at his home at New Windsor, N. Y., on October 2. He had been in failing health for a long time, but his death came unexpectedly and was caused by an attack of heart disease. Taken ill a fortnight ago, Mr. Harper began to show the effects of his age, but he rallied and was able to get about for a week. Mr. Harper was born in New York City and was seventy-seven years old. For many years he was connected with Harper & Brothers, but withdrew from the firm and retired from active business in 1889. After that he spent much time in travel abroad. He married Miss Charlotte Socket and two children were born to them. John, the only surviving son, lives near the Ingleside family home. Mr. Harper was a lover of art and is said to have been one of the foremost judges of painting in this country. Joseph Abner Harper was the second son of John Harper, one of the four original Harper Brothers. (John Harper was born in 1797 and died in 1875.) Joseph Abner Harper entered the business of Harper & Brothers just previous to the great fire of December, 1853, and took an active part in the business for thirty-six years. His special work was conducting the Educational Department. Harper & Brothers had a very large number of college text-books on their list, but in 1862 they began the publication of common school books, Wilson's Readers being the first enterprise. When Harper & Brothers sold out their common school books to the American Book Company, in 1889, Mr. Harper determined to retire. Personally Mr. Harper was very much respected by all the office force as a man who was pre-eminently fair, ready to listen to any explanation before passing judgment on any person or on any project. When the news of his death reached the Harper offices those of the staff who had been in the employ of the house before 1889 determined to join in sending a floral tribute. Henry Alden, the editor of Harper's Magazine, who has been connected with the house for nearly fifty years, wrote a very sympathetic letter to the family, which he and nineteen others signed, all of the persons signing having been connected with the house previous to 1889, and being still in the employ of the house at the present day, without any interruption.

MRS. REBECCA HARDING DAVIS, mother of Richard Harding Davis, the novelist, and herself a writer of note, died at Mount Kisco Thursday, September 29, of heart disease. Mrs. Davis had been in failing health for some time. Mrs. Davis was eighty years old. She was born in Washington, and first gained prominence with her "Life in the Iron Mills." Others of her works were "Margret Hewth," "Waiting for the Verdict," "Dallas Galbraith," "A Law Unto Herself," "Kitty's Choice," "John Andross," "Kent Hampden," "Natasqua," "Silhouettes of American Life," "Frances Waldeaux," "Doctor Warrick's Daughters" and "Bits of Gossip." Mrs. Davis began writing in her girlhood, and besides her fourteen novels wrote many magazine contributions. She was formerly on the editorial staff of the Tribune. The Atlantic Monthly printed her first series of stories when she was living with her parents in Wheeling, W. Va.

FRANK M. LUPTON, publisher, of 23 City Hall Place, New York City, committed suicide on Thursday at his home, 839 St. Mark's Place, Brooklyn, in consequence of overwork, prolonged ill health and attending melancholia. Mr. Lupton was born on Long Island on February 21, 1854. He entered the printing and publishing business at the age of seventeen. He made money as publisher of reprints, but for later years had devoted his energies to magazines and periodicals. The business is a stock company, and will be continued under the management of his son-in-law, Charles C. Hoge, the vice-president.

THE REV. DAVID MAGIE, author of "The Life of Garrett Augustus Hobart," died on Monday last. Doctor Magie was Pastor Emeritus of the Church of the Redeemer at Paterson, N. J., President of the Presbyterian Board of Church Erection, and a Trustee of Princeton Theological Seminary. He was an intimate friend of Vice-President Hobart, who attended the church of which the deceased was pastor.

THE death is announced this week of a popular French author of romances, M. Louis Boussenard, who wrote many books, notably a "Tour du Monde d'un Gamin de Paris." One of his books appeared in an English translation in 1883 under the title of "The Crusoes of Guiana; or, the White Tiger." M. Boussenard was 63 years of age.

BEST SELLING BOOKS.

ACCORDING to the Bookman's lists, the six books (fiction) which have sold best in the order of demand during August are:

	POINTS.
1. The Rosary. Barclay. (Putnam.) $1.35	281

PERSONAL NOTE.

EDWARD J. GOLDBERY, representing Laird & Lee, was in New York last week. He reported excellent business through the West, and expects to find it just as good on the rest of his trip back by way of New England and eastern Canada.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ISRAEL ZANGWILL, from whom we have not heard in some time, is bringing out a book of "Italian Fantasies." It treats of such subjects as "Italian Grotesques," "Parvenu Pompeii" and "The Consolation of Phlebotomy."

CYNTHIA STOCKLEY, the author of the much talked of novel "Poppy," is a woman of varied experiences. A newspaper writer in London, she visited South Africa at the time of the Boer War, and there gathered material for her book. She also visited this country and was on the stage here for two years, gathering information which it is supposed she will use in some story of the immediate future. Her work is now greatly in demand with English publishers.

MRS. JULA WARD HOWE, in her ninety-second year and so feeble that she was brought to the platform in a wheeled chair, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the induction exercises of Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, the new president of Smith College, on Wednesday, September 28. The induction ceremonies of President Burton were most impressive, and were attended by representatives of educational institutions throughout the world. In addition to the degree conferred upon Mrs. Howe honorary degrees were conferred upon eight other women of prominence, one of them Miss Addams, of Hull House.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish October 15 "The Sword in the Mountains," Alice MacGowan's stirring romance of the Civil War, said to be fully up to the high mark of "Judith of the Cumberlands" and "The Wiving of Lance Cleaverage."

DAVID MCKAY advises us that the limited vellum edition of the Sangorski and Sutcliffe "Omar Khayyám" has been oversold both in Europe and America, so that no further copies can be furnished. There are still a limited number of the $6 edition available.

HODDER & STOUGHTON and the George H. Doran Company are offering for fifty cents in their H. & S. Library standard works or religious interest, which in their first edition cost from $2.50 up, thus putting to use for books of this class a custom long prevalent in fiction.

CHARLES C. THOMPSON CO., 545-549 Wabash Ave., Chicago, has a most useful book on "Automobile Troubles," telling how to master the motor car, motor boat, motorcycle or aircraft under all the vicissitudes that may beset them. Flying machines are specially dealt with. The book comes in cloth or leather.

HAROLD BELL WRIGHT has written a little Christmas classic in "The Uncrowned King," much shorter than "The Shepherd of the Hills;" and "The Calling of Dan Matthews," but specially fitted for an artistic holiday gift, with a frontispiece in color, its ten illustrations in color and tint and its cover design all the work of John Rae Neill.

GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS, People's Gas Building, Chicago, has now ready, "Uncle Walt," a volume of the original prose poems of Walt Mason, termed by William Allen White "the poet laureate of the American democracy." The book has cover in several colors by Will Bradley and frontispiece by McCutcheon. It is printed on good paper and contains upwards of 200 pages of humor.

MACMILLAN COMPANY have ready "Hearts and Coronets," by Alice Wilson Fox, a good, wholesome story for young people, telling the little joys and sorrows of a very human English girl. Also, "The World a Spiritual System; an Outline of Metaphysics," by James H. Snowden, D.D., formerly Adjunct Professor of Psychology and Ethics in Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE will resume its social meetings with the dinner to be held at the Aldine Association, Fifth Avenue and 23d Street, October 19, at 6.30 P.M. Members should notify Charles A. Burkhardt, 31 West 23d Street, before October 17 if they desire seats reserved for them. The guests of the evening will be Dr. Woods Hutchinson, Reginald Wright Kauffman and Gustavus Myers.

IT seems that the last word in the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy will never be uttered, for here comes another book treating the subject exhaustively. The author is Sir Edwin Durning-Lawrence, and in "Bacon is Shake-Speare, Together with a Reprint of Bacon's Promus of Formularies and Elegancies" he takes up the cudgels for Bacon with much vigor. The John McBride Company publish the book.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY have ready two books with religious themes, one "Scientific Christianity," by Gerald Leighton, M.D., an effort to show that the whole nature of man is governed by one single set of laws, and that when these laws are applied they supply the key to many problems; the other book is also by a physician, George M. Gould, and is made up of five essays, taking its title from the initial one, "The Infinite Presence."

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY are gratified that after Harold MacGrath's "A Splendid Hazard" has had a four months' career of growing popularity the St Louis Post Dispatch prints a poem of eight clever verses dealing with its dramatic plot and widespread geography which takes in Paris, New York, New Jersey and Corsica. A grandson of Napoleon's and pirates and buried treasure are all skilfully worked into the Western poem.

"OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE," delineated by Hanslip Fletcher and with an introduction by J. Willis Clark, Registrary of the University of Cambridge, is a handsome volume made up of pictures of the colleges of the two famous universities, with descriptive notes by various authors. The book is published by Wessels & Bissell Company, as is also "The Mercy of Fate," a novel by Thomas McKean, in which is told the story of an American self-made millionaire.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & COMPANY send us "The Unity of Religions: a Popular Discussion of Ancient and Modern Beliefs," edited by J. Herman Randall, D.D., and J. Gardner Smith, M.D., a volume made up of the lectures by men of different religious beliefs, delivered last winter at the Mount Morris Baptist Church, New York City. We have also received from this firm a volume of poems, "Lips of Music," by Charlotte Porter.

ALMOST the last literary mission O. Henry performed was the selection of the stories and the title for "Whirligigs," which is just ready. Doubleday, Page & Company publish this book, as well as "Presidential Addresses and State Papers" of William Howard Taft, covering the period from his nomination to the end of his 13,000-mile tour of the country, and a collection of all the earlier poems of Cale Young Rice which he cares to preserve, which appears under the title "Song-surf."

A BOOK just issued by A. C. McClurg & Company is "The Girl Who Lived in the Woods," by Marjorie Benton Cooke. It is an unusual story in which Bohemian artist life in Chicago and the intrigues incident to a labor war are contrasted with idyllic country life. The "Girl" is a talented artist, who had thrust from her the conventions of society and chosen to live an outcast until the influence of a little child wins her back to human companionship and opens up to her the path of a beautifully told romance.

JACOBS & CO. will publish this week the fifteenth volume in the American Crisis Series of Biographies the life of William H. Seward, the great anti-slavery Senator and Secretary of State during the Civil War, written by Edward Everett Hale, Jr. Seward early advocated the construction of the Erie Canal and the extension of the popular vote; then the slave question claimed his attention, and he labored incessantly to abolish slavery. His last interests were the purchase of Alaska and its development.

BLAIR JAEKEL, in "The Lands of the Tamed Turk," recently published by L. C. Page & Company, Boston, calls attention to the fact that there still remains a portion of Europe which has been overlooked in the average travel repertoire; where, although within easy and comfortable access to almost every European railway centre, primitive people, curious customs and mediæval methods still remain. Mr. Jaekel gives an interesting, straightforward narrative of twentieth century travel through Servia, Bulgaria, Montenegro, Dalmatia and the newly acquired Austrian provinces of Herzegovina and Bosnia.

"GREAT Cities in America: Their Problems and Their Government," by Delos F. Wilcox,

Chief of the Bureau of Franchises of the Public Service Commission, was published last week in Macmillan's Citizen's Library of Economics, Politics and Sociology. The volume discusses with absolute frankness the existing conditions in six of our leading cities—Washington, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Boston. Each city is taken up separately and an entire chapter is devoted to a general description of its government and to a specific statement of its problems.

JOHN LANE COMPANY have ready "Tales of the Tenements," by Eden Phillpotts; "Harmon Pols," by Maarten Maartens, which has been called a Dutch "Scarlet Letter;" "Attitudes and Avowals," essays by Richard Le Gallienne; "Adventures in Home-Making," by Robert and Elizabeth Shackleton; "The Hill o' Dreams," verses by Helen Lanyon; "The Romance of Monaco and Its Rulers," by Ethel Colburn Mayne; "Bellcroft Priory," by W. Bourne Cook; "A Christmas Mystery," the story of the three wise men told by William J. Locke, and new editions of some of Walter Crane's inimitable picture books.

BARONESS VON HUTTEN'S latest novel, "The Green Patch," will be published by Frederick A Stokes Company on October 12. This novel is something of a departure from the author's previous works, in that the scene of a part is laid in tropical Ceylon, which she has recently visited. The background of the first portion shifts from England to a beautiful villa in Italy. An interesting development in the plot brings about a successor to the frequent "eternal triangle" in a new "quadrangle." Here two well-matched, loving couples, through curious misunderstandings, become entangled in a complication apparently incapable of solution.

ALTHOUGH the art of advertising is not understood in France as it is understood in England and America, the natural genius of the French for picturesqueness occasionally finds vent in very striking and very telling modes of advertising. Here is an advertisement, says a Paris corespondent of the London Express, which I saw a few days ago in several of the Paris papers: "A young man of twenty-seven, good-looking and very wealthy, is anxious to marry a young lady whose appearance and character correspond with those of Vera in 'Love's Victim.'" I have not given the real name of the novel, which has had advertisement enough. Of course the novel had a large sale. And as it happens to be quite a clever book the author has reason to be pleased with his advertisement.

GEORGE D. SMITH, of 48 Wall Street, advises us that the following rare books have been stolen: Josephus, "Histoire de St. Josephe," painted binding, brown calf, metal clasps and bosses in the corners. Lion, 1558. Watts, "Lyrics of the Heart," full red crushed levant morocco. London, 1851. Presentation copy from the author. Dobson, "Dance of Death," full dark crushed levant morocco by Club Bindery. London, 1892. Bacon, "Friendship," MS. on vellum, full green crushed levant extra. Walton's "Complete Angler," full crushed levant, extra. Major ed. London, 1824. The books were taken Sunday night at the 125th Street railroad station. Dealers will be on the lookout for them.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have among their autumn books fast making their way to popularity a volume of five stories by Henry James, taking its title, "The Finer Grain," from the opening story; Gouverneur Morris' fantastic amusing and tragic stories grouped as "The Spread Eagle and Other Stories;" Fishers Ames' "By Reef and Trail," a story of hunting adventures in Florida; Ralph D. Paine's "A Cadet of the Black Star Line," the cadet apprenticed upon one of the big ocean liners of to-day; John Galsworthy's "Justice," the four-act tragedy which has so vividly impressed so many people; and E. B. Elwell's "Auction Bridge," an authoritative commentary on this latest popular development in the game of bridge.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have just ready, "Hunting with the Eskimos," by Harry Whitney, the unique record of a sportsman's year among the northernmost tribe, the big game hunting, the native life and the battle for existence through the long arctic night, a most intimate picture of Eskimo life, profusely illustrated, with interesting reproductions of Eskimo sketches. Francis Arnold Collins has written a timely "Boys' Book of Model Aeroplanes," telling how to make and how to fly the machines and giving many pictures from photographs and working diagrams. Four unusual stories of mystery by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell will appear under the title, "The Guillotine Club," with illustrations by Castaigne and Gruger.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce the publication this week of three new books: "Pan's Mountain," a novel by Amélie Rives; "The Way to Peace," by Margaret Deland, with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens; "In Various Moods," a volume of verse by Irving Bacheller. "Desperate Remedies" is this week added to the new Harper thin-paper edition of Thomas Hardy's novels. "Pan's Mountain," the title of Amélie Rives's novel, is suggestive of the story, the love of an English poet for an Italian girl, who is half Greek and half pagan—a worshipper of Pan. A story like this could have no commonplace ending, and it is in the working out of destiny in the strange pair that readers will find again the author of "The Quick or the Dead?"

FROM D. Appleton & Company come the following books: "The Yardstick Man," by Arthur Goodrich, author of "The Balance of Power," etc., a story of New York business life; "Studies in Spiritism," by Amy E. Tanner, with an introduction by G. Stanley Hall, who says that to his mind "this treatise is the sanest and best of the many that have appeared in this field;" and C. C. Dyson's "The Life of Marie Amélie, Last Queen of the French," profusely illustrated account of the wife of Louis Philippe. Three juveniles have also just been issued under this imprint: Ralph Henry Barbour's "The New Boy at Hilltop," a collection of boys' school stories; "In Line of Duty," by Richmond Pearson

Hobson, a story of the Spanish-American War; and "The Young Privateersman," a tale of the War of 1812, by William O. Stevens and McKee Barclay.

THE music of Ireland is an inexhaustible treasury of folklore, history and romance. Yet, curiously enough, its story has never been adequately told. Redfern Mason's "The Song Lore of Ireland," to be issued by the Wessels & Bissell Co., aims to show how intimately the music of Ireland is the expression of the Gaelic spirit. The nature of this music, its primitive Gaelic character and development under the influence of the church, and the part played by the harpers and pipers. The antiquity of the melodies, their preservation in the unaided memory of the people through long ages of oppression and visitations of famine, and their final perpetuation in notation through the labors of such men as George Petrie and Dr. P. W. Joyce are dwelt upon. Specimens of the music are given. Of especial charm should be that part of the work which deals with the mystical element in Irish music.

ON Saturday, October 8, Houghton Mifflin Co. publish some of their most important books for the coming holiday season, as follows: "Salomy Jane," Bret Harte's famous love story of the Far West, in a dainty holiday edition illustrated in color by Harrison Fisher and Arthur I. Keller; "The Christmas Angel," an appealing holiday story, by Abbie Farwell Brown, illustrated by Reginald Birch; a holiday edition of Kate Douglas. Wiggin's ever popular "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," with a frontispiece in color by F. C. Yohn and illustrations from photographs of the play now running in New York City; "Darius Green and His Flying-Machine," John T. Trowbridge's classic poem now first published in book form, with illustrations by Wallace Goldsmith; "The Qualities of Men," an essay in appreciation by Prof. Joseph Jastrow, of the University of Wisconsin; "How to Judge a Book," by Edwin L. Shuman, literary editor of one of the leading Chicago papers; and "Primitive Psycho-Therapy and Quackery," by Dr. Robert M. Lawrence.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY announce the following new publications: "Making Life Worth While," by Herbert W. Fisher, which tells how to regain health before losing it; "The Hollow Needle," by Maurice Leblanc, the author of "Arsene Lupin;" "The Healthful Art of Dancing," by Dr. Luther H. Gulick; "The Red Magic Book," by A. A. and E. B. Knipe, a juvenile mechanical book, something after the order of Peter Newell's "The Hole Book;" "Mountain Adventures," by George E. Abrams; "Presidential Addresses and State Papers," by William Howard Taft; a second volume; "Song Surf," by Cale Young Rice, a volume of poems. Thousands of children will be made happy this Christmas by a gift of the "Red Magic Book," by A. A. and E. B. Knipe. By an ingenious device (a hinged page of red transparent celluloid) a picture of a boy devouring an unsafe amount of Mother's pie is mysteriously transformed into one showing the painful consequences of his youthful error. There are twenty-three other drawings between the covers, to all of which the application of the red magic affords a glimpse of amusing or dire results. There is an attractive cover, showing a clown in fantastic garb. The book, which should prove as fascinating to children as did Peter Newell's famous "Hole Book," has just been published by Doubleday, Page & Company, at a retail price of $1.25.

Books Wanted

Under this head booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noticed.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm-name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withdrawing their use from irresponsible advertisers, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY'S PUBLICATIONS

THIRD EDITION

A Circuit Rider's Wife

By CORRA HARRIS

"A picture of a sensitive refined woman and a high-souled noble man living such a life as the poorest tenement dweller would find hard to bear and living it with the knowledge that the sentence is for life. In this story will be found the real life of the true heroes of religion in this country to-day, a story which should give the most unthinking of Americans pause."—New York Times.

That Little Bar and Nut—has Solved the Problem!

THE bookseller has many calls from Ministers for a Bible in which they can make notes, either in the margin, or by interleaving. A wide margin on a Bible makes a large book and does not give enough room for notes. On the other hand interleaving a Bible more than doubles its thickness, thus making an extremely bulky volume, and puts in leaves where they are not wanted, and not enough where they are wanted. To meet these difficulties Nelsons have decided to apply their Loose-Leaf Encyclopædia Binder to a Bible, and to supply with it 160 blank pages, which will enable the minister to put in a sermon, or his notes, wherever desired all through the Bible. Nelson's Patent-Loose-Leaf Binder makes the volume look just like any other Bible, and the device is so simple that anyone can insert, change or remove a page or pages in a moment. Additional blank pages can be secured at any time at nominal cost.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF
THOMAS COLLIER PLATT

With Addenda and Edited by LOUIS J. LANG

Twenty Portraits in Sepia

8vo. Cloth-Buckram, Gilt Top, $5.00 net
8vo. Full Leather, Gilt Top, $10.00 net

PLATT traces his gradual rise from a Fremont campaign troubadour in 1856 to the absolute domination of the Republican party in the East.

He tells of the influential leaders he made and unmade. The crafty methods to which he resorted to make Garfield, Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt Presidents, and Morton, Black and Odell Governors, and Roosevelt Governor and Vice-President, are disclosed in an unique and masterful manner.

He frankly and boldly discloses National and State secrets hitherto only dreamed of, except by those in his immediate confidence.

His quarrels with Presidents Garfield, Hayes and Harrison, and Governors Black and Odell, are candidly described.

The humanity of one popularly presumed to be merely a cold-blooded politician is divulged through the reproduction of songs, poems and stories composed and written by him.

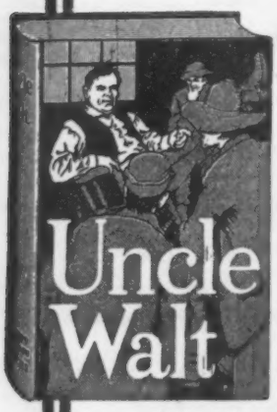
Walt Mason
—in Beautiful Book Form



Termed by William Allen White, "The Poet Laureate of the American Democracy"

THE "Uncle Walt" book, for which a nation has been waiting for months is ready. This is the first and only volume containing the original, inimitable Prose-Poems of Walt Mason. Not for a hundred years has there arisen among us one whose "right-from-the-soil" lyre songs are so representative of the spirit of democracy—and each one done up in tin-foil smile capsules, sugar-coated, and wholly according to the Pure Food Laws. In the next twelve-month the home without its "Uncle Walt" book will be a home in gloom indeed.

An ★ All-Star ★ Book

This book is a beautiful work, with cover in several colors by Will Bradley, frontispiece by the famous McCutcheon. Introduction by William Allen White, illustrated by William Stevens. The body is printed on high-grade paper, deckle-edged, gilt top—200 pages of humor, pathos, and side-widening what-not. Price, $1.25 net.

Yes, it is false economy to try to get along with last year's "Trade List Annual," or one even more out of date, when you can have the current volume (1910) for $2.00. If you overlooked ordering a copy this year let us send one now so that you may have full use of "the green pig" during the busy season now beginning.

"THE LECTURES OF BRET HARTE"

TO WHICH IS ADDED

"The Piracy of Bret Harte's Fables"—by CHARLES MEEKER KOZLAY

Fully illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50 net

¶ Of the first edition of 1000 copies (type set and distributed) one hundred have been printed on Abbotsford Deckle Edge Paper and bound in ooze leather, of which eighty copies are for sale at $3.00 net.

¶ No attempt has heretofore been made to publish the lectures of Bret Harte, because of the seeming impossibility of issuing them in complete form, the newspaper accounts giving only those parts which most impressed the reporter, in fact only one lecture, "The Argonauts of '49" seems to have been known to Harte's biographers. This is also the first appearance in book form of Harte's Fables, illustrated, and with an interesting little history of their "Piracy."

PAPER TESTING

WE have facilities for making chemical, microscopical and physical tests of paper promptly and at reasonable prices.

We can be of service to the purchaser by showing him whether he is getting what he has specified.

We can be of service to the manufacturer in disputes where the report of a third party is likely to be more effective.
